"I would get out of heart and line. I would feel like I was going to be down in bed. Yet I kept dragging around.

"We heard of Ziron, and from what I read, I was sure it wouldn't hurt me, if it didn't help me. But after taking it, I found it really helped me, and I sent back for more. I ate better, felt much stronger. I am sure Ziron is a splendid tonic."

THE COTTON SITUATION

Manufacturers' Record. English cotton experts at the World's Cotton Conference in New Orleans last year insisted that the world needed a 15,000,000-bale crop from the South this year. They repeated the statement over and over again when they got back to England. They warned manufacturers of a world cotton cotton famine already in sight. The South has not raised the 15,000,000 bales for which they begged. Its crop will be several million bales short of what they said was absolutely needed; but under the drastic deflation work of the Federal Reserve Board, which has brought stagnation where abounding activity prevailed, cotton buyers in Europe and in this country and the bear gamblers are using the opportunity thus created to drive cotton prices down below the cost of production.

Betrayed in the house of its supposed friends, its credits curtailed by the action of the board, the South must face a tremendous fight to protect its cotton against all enemies, open and secret. The planters should, after paying their debts, hold their cotton and store it, knowing full well that if they assert their power they can control the marketing of their staple.

The age-old custom of rushing cotton to the market in the fall only played into the hands of the buyers, who, having forced prices to the lowest point, stocked up heavily, and then prices advanced, to their profit but to the loss of the growers. Let the South hold its cotton and market it slowly, during twelve months, instead of in four, and the producer will then soon hold the whip handle and no longer be driven by the lash of the buyers. At the same time the South should give its attention more largely to diversified agriculture, raising a full supply of foodstuffs, for its own use and to add to the nation's food store, making cotton a surplus crop. For a quarter of a century the Manufacturers' Record has sought to drive home the idea that every Southern farmer should raise his own foodstuffs and then plant in cotton his surplus land only. In that way lie prosperity and safety, and in that way only.
